

BALLOT BATTLE

Intense Interest Displayed in Doubtful States

Both Sides Express Confidence in Victory Today.

Heavy Vote in Ohio—Progress of Voting in New York, Indiana, West Virginia, Connecticut and Other States.

Columbus, O., Nov. 8.—Reports received here from over the state show tremendously heavy voting. As Ohio is largely Republican on a full vote the indications are for Roosevelt carrying the state by 75,000 plurality or more. Of the congressional contests it seems that the Republicans will carry the First, Sixth, Seventh, Eighth, Ninth, Eleventh, Fourteenth, Sixteenth, Eighteenth, Nineteenth, Twentieth and Twenty-first districts. The Democrats seem reasonably sure of carrying the Fourth, Fifth, Thirteenth and Seventeenth (Jackson) districts. This leaves the Third, Twelfth and Fifteenth (Dawes) districts in doubt. The first two are in serious doubt, but while the Democrats have a cinch in the Fifteenth, the best information seems to indicate that the Republicans will carry it by a reduced majority. The Third is now represented by a Republican, Congressman Nevin, and the Twelfth by Democratic Congressman Badger.

Columbus, O., Nov. 8.—Reports received at political headquarters here up to 1 p. m. indicate that a heavy vote is being polled throughout the state. It is estimated that more than a million votes will be polled. No serious disturbances have been reported, and all indications point to an orderly election in this state.

State Chairman Garber sent from his home at Greenville no alteration of his prediction of Democratic gains over the Herrick plurality of 113,812. Secretary John R. Malloy of the Republican state executive committee ventured the opinion that Democrats voting for Roosevelt would boost the president's plurality above the 100,000 mark.

Throughout Ohio returns will be slow because of the long ticket to be counted. Secretary of State Laylin reports that there are 4,013 precincts in Ohio, of which 703 are new. As today's vote is to be compared with that of 1903, there is no way of including these new precincts, which were made by dividing old precincts. It will mean simply that the margin of error in estimates made on incomplete returns will be slightly larger than usual.

As the larger cities in Ohio, with possibly two exceptions, are Republican strongholds, there may be some ground for the claim that the Socialists' agitation will affect the Republicans more than the Democrats. While other localities are lacking in interest, the contests in the Third, Twelfth and Fifteenth congressional districts and at Cleveland on the county ticket are among the most animated ever known in this state.

JUDGE PARKER

Voted Today at Kingston and Mr. Roosevelt Cast Ballot at Oyster Bay.

Rosemount, Esopus, N. Y., Nov. 8.—The Parker family and the many friends of the Democratic presidential nominee who had gathered about the little village, hailed the faultless weather today as a good omen and a promise of victory. Judge Parker slept later this morning than any day since the St. Louis convention. He arose shortly after 8 o'clock and read the newspapers before breakfast. At 8:30 he ate with his family, discussing the morning's news with them, and appearing in all respects cheerful and confident. The private telephone wire, which connects Rosemount with the national headquarters in New York began bearing his messages of good cheer early.

At 9:30 o'clock the pair of blacks were hitched to a buckboard in preparation for the candidate's ride to his polling place in Kingston. Judge Parker voted at 10:40 today.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Nov. 8.—President Roosevelt cast his ballot in precinct No. 5 at 5:50 o'clock. He arrived at the station here five minutes previously and received a demonstration. After going up stairs, where the polling booths are situated, the President shook hands with a dozen or more old neighbors. This completed, he was handed ballot No. 165 and he disappeared into one of the compartments. The President did not linger more than one minute and when he came out he was greeted by a flash from a photographer's battery and a good picture of the back of the President's head was secured.

Trouble With Voting Machines.
Buffalo, N. Y., Nov. 8.—In the first hour of voting here this morning there was some trouble with the voting machines. In a strong Democratic precinct of the east side one machine was out of order 40 minutes and many persons left without voting. Politicians charge that the delay was purposely caused by election officials. The day is perfect, clear and cloudless, and a heavy vote is being polled.

At Ft. Wayne.
Ft. Wayne, Ind., Nov. 8.—The voting began early this morning with the weather favorable to a heavy vote. The district is close on congress with chances favoring Newton W. Gilbert, now lieutenant governor, over James M. Robinson, incumbent for four terms.

Had to Stand in Line.
Brocton, Mass., Nov. 8.—The fact that Wm. L. Douglas, of this city, is the Democratic candidate for governor has excited a lively local interest in today's election. There was such a crush at several of the precincts when the polls opened that voters had to stand in line half an hour before they could get to the ballot booths. The weather is perfect.

New York.
New York, Nov. 8.—Both parties are claiming the Empire state, the Democrats pinning their faith to a statement by Charles F. Murphy, leader of Tammany Hall, that the vote for Parker in Greater New York would be the greatest ever cast for a Democratic candidate, while the Republican view was expressed by Governor Odell, who said Parker's plurality in the city would have to be better than 140,000 if he was to carry New York state. A very heavy vote was polled in the greater city and throughout the state during the early hours. The plans to prevent illegal voting were made on a scale that eclipsed all former efforts. In addition to the party watchers and the city's 8,000 policemen, Superintendent Morgan of the state election bureau for the Metropolitan district had more than 1,000 deputies at work to prevent the casting of ballots by those not entitled to vote.

Wisconsin.
Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 8.—It is generally conceded that the Roosevelt and Fairbanks electors will carry Wisconsin by a plurality ranging between 50,000 and 75,000. Chairman W. D. Connor of the Republican state central committee claims that Governor LaFollette will have 75,000 plurality, and expects his ticket to be elected from top to bottom with the exception of John J. Kempf, candidate for state treasurer, against whom much opposition has been manifested by the state central committee. The Republicans claim at least six congressmen will be elected. Democratic State Chairman A. F. Warden claims George W. Peck will be elected by 25,000 plurality, and that the Democrats will control the legislature. Victor L. Berger, chairman of the Social Democratic state committee, believes his party has a good chance of carrying Milwaukee county and electing two congressmen.

Delaware.
Wilmington, Del., Nov. 8.—The campaign in Delaware was one of the most complicated in the political history of the state. Both the Democrats and the Republicans claim they will carry the little state for their respective national and state tickets, but indications point to Republican success by majorities under those of four years ago. In 1900 McKinley had a plurality of 3,671. The Addicks and anti-Addicks Republicans, who had separate state tickets in the field, but agreed upon a compromise list of candidates, fully expect to elect their ticket, which is headed by Preston Lea for governor.

Indiana.
Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 8.—At Republican and Democratic state headquarters the organizers survey the results of their work with satisfaction. The Republican leaders refuse to change their prediction that Roosevelt and Fairbanks will carry Indiana by pluralities variously estimated from 20,000 to 35,000. Democratic leaders confidently assert their belief that Parker and Davis will be successful in Indiana, but refuse to make known the figures upon which they found their belief. A heavy vote is being polled throughout the state.

Massachusetts.
Boston, Nov. 8.—It is upon the vote for governor and upon the choice of congressmen in various districts that the claims of the Republicans and Democrats are in conflict in this state. The success of the Roosevelt electors being conceded by the Democrats, the Democrats claim the election of William L. Douglas, candidate for governor, and they will be disappointed if, this not being achieved, Governor Bates' plurality is not reduced to a small margin. The influences which are expected to bring this about are the governor's veto of the overtime bill, the increase in the commonwealth's debt and the sentiment in favor of a more pronounced form of Canadian reciprocity than has been put forward by the Republicans. The Republican leaders predict Governor Bates' re-election by the customary large plurality.

Nebraska.
Lincoln, Neb., Nov. 8.—The vote throughout the state is heavy, and Roosevelt's plurality will not be far from 40,000. Speaking for the state and legislative tickets, Chairman Weber of the fusion committee said: "The fusionists will carry the state for Berge for governor beyond a doubt. Indications are that the legislature will be fusion because of the fight over the revenue law and a desire for economy. We expect to make our greatest gains in the Third congressional district, where McKillip is sure to be elected."

New Jersey.
Trenton, N. J., Nov. 8.—The Republicans, so far as the presidency is concerned, entered the campaign just closed with the prestige of a plurality of 56,899 for McKinley four years ago. They are confident of carrying the state for Roosevelt by from 35,000 to 40,000. The Democrats are claiming that Parker will have a small plurality. The Democrats have made a strong fight for Charles C. Black for governor on a platform for the greater taxation of railroads, and are enthusiastically confident of winning.

Maryland.
Baltimore, Nov. 8.—Chairman Vandiver of the Democratic state committee repeated his claim that Maryland will go Democratic by 15,000 majority, and that the Democrats will certainly elect four, and possibly five, of the six congressmen. At Republican headquarters Chairman Hanna said that final reports received from a number of counties were highly encouraging and indicated that there is a strong chance of a majority for Roosevelt and Fairbanks.

Colorado.
Denver, Colo., Nov. 8.—Despite the tense feeling resulting from the sharp contest over the governorship, indications point to a peaceable election throughout the state with the possible exception of Teller county, where Republicans and Democrats accuse each other of having planned to provoke trouble. Neither side has modified its claims of a sweeping victory, but Republicans and Democrats alike agree that Roosevelt and Fairbanks will get many more votes than the other Republican candidates.

Connecticut.
New Haven, Conn., Nov. 8.—Chairman Walsh of the Democratic state central committee said: "We have won Connecticut by a great campaign, and both Parker and Robinson for governor will carry the state by significant majorities." At Republican headquarters State Chairman Kenealy said: "I am more certain than at any time during the campaign that Roosevelt will carry Connecticut by not less than 15,000 majority, and I would not be surprised to see 20,000 posted as the figures."

Oklahoma.
Guthrie, Okla., Nov. 8.—Statehood was the issue upon which the campaign was fought out in Oklahoma, the Republicans endorsing and the Democrats opposing the Hamilton bill, which has passed the lower house of congress, and which provides for joint statehood for Indian Territory and Oklahoma. The Republicans claim B. S. McGuire's majority for delegate to congress will be about 2,500, while the Democrats maintain that Frank Matthews will be elected by 2,200 at least.

Kentucky.
Louisville, Ky., Nov. 8.—Republicans and Democrats agree that in three congressional districts the contest will be close. They are the Third, Fifth and Ninth. In the Third, J. M. Richardson (Dem.) is opposed by William Henry Jones (Rep.). In the Fifth Swager Shierley's opponent is W. C. Owens, and in the Ninth J. N. Kehoe's adversary is J. B. Bennett. In these districts the fight has been waged desperately, but the Democrats claim they will be victorious.

Illinois.
Chicago, Nov. 8.—The Republicans claim that they will carry Illinois by anywhere from 125,000 to 140,000, and the Democrats claim that they will reduce the Republican plurality of four years ago. The fight on congressmen will not, in all probability, result in any great change in the number of representatives from both parties. The present congressional delegation is eight Democrats and 17 Republicans.

West Virginia.
Parkersburg, W. Va., Nov. 8.—Republicans claim all five congressmen and the legislature, while the Democrats say they will elect three of the five congressmen and win control the legislature on joint ballot, insuring a Democratic senator to succeed Senator Scott. The Republicans claim a plurality of 25,000 for Roosevelt, but the Democrats are just as confident that the state will go for Parker and Davis.

President Roosevelt Votes.
Oyster Bay, N. Y., Nov. 8.—President Roosevelt arrived here at 9 a. m. after an uneventful run from Washington. He remained only long enough to vote, returning to New York in time to catch the 1:14 train for Washington.

Michigan.
Detroit, Mich., Nov. 8.—The state central committees of both the Democratic and Republican parties in Michigan express confidence that today's contest will result in the election of their state ticket. Roosevelt and Fairbanks will carry the state beyond doubt. One of the heaviest votes in the history of Michigan is being cast.

Rhode Island.
Providence, R. I., Nov. 8.—A plurality of 10,000, a decrease of 3,000 from McKinley's plurality, is confidently expected by the Republicans for President Roosevelt, though the Democrats figure on a small plurality for Parker. Indications point to a Republican majority in the legislature, which will elect a successor to United States Senator Aldrich.

Vote in Georgia.
Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 8.—Democratic leaders believe the total vote of the state may go to 125,000. The negro and Populist registration has been large. It is believed the Populist vote will be cast largely for Republican congressional candidates. It is not considered, however, that the result will be other than the usual Democratic majorities.

Missouri.
St. Louis, Nov. 8.—The Republican state committee estimates a majority of not less than 12,000 in the state, with 7,000 or more in St. Louis, and victory of at least eight of the 12 congressional districts. At the Democratic state headquarters a statement was issued estimating a gubernatorial majority of not less than 48,000, the balance of the state ticket and the national ticket a little under that figure, and 15 of the congressional districts safe.

Texas For Parker.
Austin, Tex., Nov. 8.—The Democrats announced at noon that they expect to have a representative vote. There is no opposition to the state Democratic ticket of a formidable nature. Parker's majority probably will be near that given Bryan four years ago.

CONFIDENCE IN THE RESULT EXPRESSED BY BOTH PARTIES

New York, Nov. 8.—Urey Woodson, secretary of the Democratic National committee, says:

In anticipation of the glorious victory we have won we have arranged for a monster celebration tonight, when the election of President Parker is announced.

I say President Parker, because there is no doubt of it now. Advances show that Indiana is Democratic by a huge majority. New York has been Democratic a long time, and there is no doubt about that. With Indiana and New York the election of Parker is certain.

In the celebration tonight we will throw a huge canvas across the front of the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, where the official bulletins will be displayed. Everybody should come down with tin horns and a humor sufficient to properly celebrate the election of the National Democratic ticket.

New York, Nov. 8.—Chairman Corbely of the Republican National committee, says:

I see no reason to change my estimate from the figures which I gave Saturday night in a statement to voters. Then I said that the Republicans would get no fewer than 314 of the 476 votes in the Electoral College. No conditions have arisen which, in my estimation, will change this estimate when the votes are counted tonight.

I am satisfied that the Republican candidates will carry New York. They get Illinois by a large majority, Indiana, West Virginia, New Jersey and Connecticut will be found in the ranks of the Republicans.

In brief, I believe that Roosevelt and Fairbanks will carry every Northern state, with the possible exception of Maryland and Nevada.

ARREST

Made in the Cincinnati Murder Mystery This Morning.

Cincinnati, Nov. 8.—An arrest was made this morning in the case of Anna Steing Ewing, the telephone girl who was murdered here. John L. McCraw, of Chicago, was arrested at the work house, where he was sent last Saturday to serve a sentence of 30 days and a fine on the charge of objectionable conduct. The man had frightened six little girls.

After the murder it was noticed that the description of the prisoner rather in some way with that of the man seen about the scene of the crime. He was taken from the work house and locked up at the central station. He denies that he had anything to do with the murder, but is held and will be sweated.

IN NEW YORK

It is Estimated That Three Millions Have Been Wagered on the Result.

New York, Nov. 8.—Election day broke clear and cold and voting proceeded quietly and rapidly. Ballots were cast at the rate of over one a minute in the first hour in the many election districts throughout the city. There were only a few arrests for illegal voting this morning.

Both sides claim the state today. To the unbiased observer it looks as if the state would be close with the result in doubt. The betting, which is two to one in favor of Roosevelt and two to one in favor of Herrick, Democratic candidate for governor, would seem to reveal a curious situation inasmuch as it indicates that men who have a financial interest in the result think that the Republican national ticket will also prove successful. Governor O'Neil has admitted that the Republican state ticket will run 30,000 to 40,000 behind the national ticket and this probably accounts for the confidence of the Herrick men. The last odds laid on today's election by the bettors follow. General result 5 to 1 on Roosevelt. New York state, 2 to 1 on Roosevelt. Governor New York, 2 to 1 on Herrick.

The biggest bet recorded in New York was $50,000 to $800 on Roosevelt. Estimated amount wagered in this city, $3,000,000.

Speaking of the demand of "tippers" in Egypt for curios R. Stewart Macalister of the Egyptian exploration fund says: "To meet this demand a tribe of dealers has sprung up all over the country, each employing an army of agents, who ride everywhere, east and west of the Jordan, encouraging the natives to tear in pieces tombs that otherwise might have awaited scientific examination in comparative safety."

FIFTY MILLIONS

Amount Aaked for in a Suit Against the Standard Oil Company for Damages.

Boston, Nov. 8.—The suit for $50,000,000 brought by Elizabeth T. Greenough of New York against Henry H. Rogers of the Standard Oil company, which was dismissed by agreement of the parties on Sept. 21 last, was re-entered in the supreme court. The new suit is entered under the name Cadwallader M. Raymond vs. Henry H. Rogers et al., the damages being set at $50,000,000, as before. The parties at interest are the same as in the previous suit. Mrs. Greenough is administratrix of the estate of her husband, Benjamin F. Greenough, an inventor, and seeks to recover royalties on the use of a secret process for treating petroleum to make it non-explosive.

Indian Murders.
Vancouver, B. C., Nov. 8.—Three murders have been disclosed among the Indians of British Columbia as the result of the arrest of Chief Sivild of the Northern Indians, who was made responsible by the authorities for keeping the facts of these crimes from the whites. The chief was told that he was to be sentenced to a long imprisonment. To get off he told how two of the Indians of his tribe, who desired to give a potlash, killed an Indian girl and robbed her of $200 that they might use the booty for their festivities. He also told of the killing of a white man and another Indian by the same Indians for the same purpose.

WEST VIRGINIA

Rain is Threatened, But It is Not Preventing a Full Vote From Being Cast.

Wheeling, W. Va., Nov. 8.—Election day has started out quietly in West Virginia. It threatens rain but that will not prevent a full vote from being cast.

Trouble is brewing at Huntington. One party had many put in jail this morning, the other claiming they are legal voters.

Fairmount, W. Va., Nov. 8.—The weather is cloudy, but will in no way interfere with the polling of a tremendous vote. The election promises to be the most bitterly contested in the history of the country.

Voting in Indianapolis.
Indianapolis, Nov. 8.—Senator C. W. Fairbanks, Republican nominee for vice president, was sleeping soundly at his home until almost 10 o'clock. A newspaper man, who called at the residence was told that the Senator was so tired from his campaigning that the family intended to let him rest as long as he could sleep and that the Senator had left word not to be disturbed for any reason.

National Democratic Chairman Tom Taggart voted at 6:30 this morning and personally for one hour saw to getting out the vote in his precinct. Nine-tenths of the voters in that precinct had cast their votes before 9:30. Taggart's bustling manner put vim in the precinct and the national chairman went to his headquarters at the Grand Hotel where reports began to come in on the way things were being handled in the state and in other states of the nation. Meanwhile the Republican vice president candidate slept.

IN OHIO

There Are Now 4103 Voting Precincts an Increase of 699 Over Last Year.

Columbus, O., Nov. 8.—Secretary of State Laylin announces that the total number of voting precincts this year is 4,103, an increase over last year of 699. Changes have been made in nearly every county in the state and for this reason but few comparisons can be made.

ON TRAINS

Election Returns Will be Furnished by Several Railroad Companies Tonight.

Chicago, Nov. 8.—Telegraphic election returns will be placed on board every train on the Lake Shore and New York Central systems tonight at every station at which the trains stop. The Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul and the Santa Fe railroads have also arranged to supply election returns to their passenger trains from 8 to 12 o'clock.

Arrest for Murder.

Chicago, Nov. 8.—A Miller, a hardware dealer and tinmith, is under arrest for the alleged murder of John Erickson, one of his former workmen, this morning. Erickson entered Miller's store and demanded payment of a half-day's wages, and upon refusal of Miller, it is claimed, that Erickson attacked Miller with a pair of tin shears. Miller drew a pistol which was discharged accidentally. Miller asserts Erickson was killed instantly.

BATTLE

Between Big Forces at Mukden

IS LIKELY TO BREAK OUT AT ANY MOMENT

Desperate Assaults Made On Port Arthur.

THE RUSSIAN CENTER PIERCED.

Many Russian Officers Killed—Fleet Passes Through Bosphorus—The Days War News.

Mukden, Nov. 3.—(Bulletin)—A great battle is expected here and is likely to break out here at any time. All Monday and during the night the heavy artillery firing continued. Both armies are fighting desperately. The Japanese it is considered likely, will attack first as they have the superior force.

Conditions at Port Arthur.
Chefoo, Nov. 8.—Today's advance from Port Arthur are that the Japanese yesterday made desperate attempts to take the fort General Stoessel is reported to be on the verge of desperation as his troops are not having any sleep on account of the continued assault of the Japanese. Reinforcements are constantly arriving at Dahn and hurrying into the fighting line.

May Be Belated Report.
Shanghai, Nov. 8.—A report has reached the British naval circles here that a Japanese warship struck a mine at Port Arthur and sank. The report may prove to be a belated statement of the recent announcement of the Yushima striking a mine at Port Arthur.

Russian Center Pierced.
Tokyo, Nov. 8.—It is reported the Russian center at Port Arthur has been penetrated by the Japanese. After three days of continuous bombardment of Port Arthur, which caused extensive destruction to the Shojusan and Nir-yusan forts, in the west center of the Russian line of defense, and also to Keekwan fort, the right wing of the Japanese army assaulted Shojusan. Having carried the approaches to that height the assailants intrenched themselves under the glacis of the forts. In the evening the left wing delivered an assault on Keekwan, fighting its way to the lower parapet. There the Japanese held their ground stubbornly in the face of Russian counterattacks. Having been reinforced during the night, the Russians charged down upon the Japanese, and desperate hand-to-hand conflicts ensued. The Japanese beat back the enemy and destroyed two covered positions in the front most.

Many Russian Officers Killed.
St. Petersburg, Nov. 8.—The necessity for service at the front has resulted in the mobilization of all reserve officers in St. Petersburg, Vilna, Warsaw, Kiev, Odessa, Moscow, Kazan and the Caucasus. The loss of officers at Liouyang and below Mukden was about 1,300. The mobilization, while intended to supply the deficiency, is also necessitated by the grand scale on which the war in the far east is to be prosecuted. The news from the front indicates that General Kuropatkin is devoting his attention chiefly to keeping the Japanese busy along the line of their fortifications below the Shakkie river. The Russians apparently are enjoying some superiority in the matter of artillery.

Passed Through Bosphorus.
Constantinople, Nov. 8.—The Russian volunteer fleet steamer Voronoi, loaded with coal and provisions, passed through the Bosphorus bound for the Mediterranean.

The Baltic Fleet.
London, Nov. 8.—A dispatch received today states that nine Russian colliers have arrived at Dakar, an extreme point of Cape Verde, in Senegal. The fact that these colliers have reached a point on the west coast of Africa would indicate that a portion of the Baltic fleet will proceed to the far East via Cape Horn.

Czar is Warned.

Manchester, Eng., Nov. 8.—The Guardian hears the Czar has received a urgent warning from Singapore that a vessel is at that port, laden with mines and about to set out for Europe. The number of sick and wounded soldiers under treatment in Japan toward the end of last month was 45,000.

NERVE SPLICING.

One of the Great Achievements of Modern Surgery.

Nerve splicing, or restoring dead nerves to life, is one of the latest achievements of surgery. And, though the process is still in its infancy, it is believed in medical circles that the operation will one day become as common as trepanning. Three cases have already resulted in perfect success. The cure for paralysis and palsy is brought about by means of this process. In the case of young children palsy is brought about by some accident of birth which compresses the nerves which radiate from the spinal cord and if in the upper part of the body produces paralysis in the arms. The technical name for this disease is "birth palsy."

Paralysis in old people or those advancing in years is sometimes due to this accident, though it more usually comes from the decay of the principal nerve.

Two children victims of birth palsy have been experimented upon with such success that the patients are as well as the most anxious mother could wish. Dr. Clark, one of the operating physicians, has recently explained before an audience of medical men exactly how the operation is performed. The nerves which supply motion to the affected limbs are severed from as close to the spinal cord as possible and then grafted to the nearest trunk line. If no complications arise in course of time the delicate threads unite, and the paralyzed parts take on fresh life. Naturally the operation is exceedingly difficult, because the nerves which radiate from the upper part of the spinal cord are so great in number and cross and recross each other in so complex a manner. Another difficulty lies in the fact that anesthetics must be used sparingly, for the longer the patient is under their influence the harder it is to follow the nerve threads. Baltimore American.

A Wonderful Cannon.

The inventor of the new American gun is a man named J. Hamilton Brown, though the work of constructing this particular six inch experimental piece is in charge of Colonel John M. Ingalls, retired, U. S. A., an artist of high standing and reputation. Despite the incredulity of contemporary gun builders, Colonel Ingalls and the officers with him assert that this six inch gun will throw thirty miles a projectile weighing 100 pounds which will pierce a six inch steel target. A ten inch gun of this construction with a powder chamber of 11.25 cubic inches and using 360 pounds of smokeless powder would hurl a 600 pound projectile a distance of fifty nine miles. The fact that this six inch gun would have an extreme range of more than a hundred miles, and equipped with such coast defense rifles England and France could shell each other across the channel.—Everybody's Magazine.

The right shoulder of persistent golfers' coats have to be padded, for golf develops the left shoulder so abnormally that, without this padding, the young men would look a little deformed. In driving the player's right arm and shoulder only guide the ball's course. It is the left arm and shoulder that do the work, hence the excessive left side development, to counteract which it is sometimes necessary to put in the right shoulder of the coat padding an inch deep.

Tailors can always tell a golfer by this peculiar development of his left shoulder. Sometimes young women play enough to get uneven shoulders too. The deformity, though, is rare among young women, whereas among young men it is common.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

A New Multiplex Telegraph.

The invention of new methods for sending a number of messages simultaneously over the same wire continues, and one of the most recent of these is due to Professor Mercadier of the French High School For Post and Telegraph. In this method an alternating current is employed whose frequency depends upon a tuning fork having a certain definite number of vibrations. The current of such an interrupted circuit can be broken by an ordinary key and signals transmitted over the line wire by an induction transmitter. On the line at the distant station are a number of so called monotelephones which respond to current of one frequency and are tuned to the forks in the circuit at the sending station. Thus each particular circuit has its own telephone, which is connected by cables with the cars of the receiving operator and responds to the signals made at the sending station. In all twelve circuits are provided, so that twenty-four messages may be sent over the line simultaneously.—Harper's Weekly.

Doesn't Respect Old Age.

It's shameful when youth fails to show proper respect for old age, but just the contrary in the case of Dr. King's New Life Pills. They cut off maladies no matter how severe and irrespective of old age. Dyspepsia, Jaundice, Fever, Constipation all yield to this perfect pill. 25c at Hall's Drug Store.

THAT OLD TIME PARADE

The following from the Connellsville (Pa.) News will be of interest in this locality as Col. Brownfield has a number of relatives in Licking county.

FORWARD—During the heated presidential campaign of 1872, 1876 and 1880, Col. Benjamin Brownfield of Georges township was one of the most conspicuous political characters in Western Pennsylvania—a rock-ribbed Democrat of the old school. Always at the front in his party's time of need, and never asking for reward, he fought its battles with a Spartan devotion and courage that has never been equaled by any, either before or since his time. The author of the following lines makes an apology to the public for what it may consider poor poetry, when examined under the electric light of criticism, for it is only the spontaneous outburst of an enthusiastic admiration for the old Roman that has prompted the effort. We can well remember the time when as just a little dirty legged bare foot country boy, the biggest man to us in all the world was Col. "Ben" as he was called, not excepting even the President of the United States, or General Scott, who was the hero of the Mexican war. Col. Brownfield always had the finest team, the nicest dressed boys to ride the horses, the best martial band, the most elaborate decorations for his wagon and thirteen of the prettiest girls that could be found in the country to ride in it and sing the stirring campaign songs of the day. They were all Democrats too, all married Democrat husbands, or made them Democrats after marriage, and all raised Democratic children that are Democrats today—all wool and a yard and three-quarters wide. And all this was brought about by Col. "Ben" and his big team. May his memory live and go down along the ages yet to come. May his name never be forgotten, not his work perish from the earth. Hats off boys! Three cheers and a hurrah for the memory of Col. "Ben" and the Democratic ticket.

THE "WHEELS"
You talk about your politics
And modern "action" wars,
And think you're cutting up "high links"
In these our new idea days,
But when I see my memory up
Of that old-time parade
I think I might someday ride the lead
In Colonel Brownfield's twelve-horse team.

Those old campaigns I can't forget
Though many years have come between,
And on that old-time parade would form
With banners in the sun's bright beam,
No soldiers ever rode in line
With Colonel Brownfield's twelve-horse team.
The flags, the drums, the lancers' gay,
Sawed all the crowd to hypnotize,
Put inspiration in the soul
Of youth and old on that parade.
Deeded out in furrows so fine
Looked like an armed knight of old,
As he rode slowly down the line,
The drums would beat, the men would cheer.
The boys would yell, the girls would shout,
While proudest in that instant line,
Stepped Colonel Brownfield's twelve-horse team.

Those old campaigns I can't forget
Though many years have come between,
And on that old-time parade would form
With banners in the sun's bright beam,
No soldiers ever rode in line
With Colonel Brownfield's twelve-horse team.

But years have flown, and boyhood's
Unrealized have gone for aye:
The songs forgot, the issues dead,
The shouting throng all passed away,
They once kept step with loyal cheers
And marched where bugles led,
Now down the line to "Home, Sweet Home," They've reached the goal—'twas just
A dream.
But could we catch from spirit land
A message 'cross the Stygian stream,
Methinks we'd hear them cheering yet
For Colonel Brownfield's twelve-horse team.

Advertising Creates Value

One of the receivers of the National Salt company testified in court that a certain trademark was considered "a valuable asset" as it was the brand of salt that brought the highest price and had a good market.

Asked how this salt was different from other salts sold by the company, the receiver, hesitating, admitted that there was no difference; that they all came out of the same kettle. When the court then inquired what caused the high price and good market for this particular product the witness replied:

"Simply the extensive and attractive advertising the brand got."

One thought suggested by this curious confession is the testimony it bears as to the efficacy of advertising to create "a valuable asset" even where, as in this—let us hope exceptional—instance, the advertiser was not quite candid about the quality of the goods.—New York Herald.

White Shoes For Women.

While in a manufacturer's office the other day the writer chanced to hear an argument about colors in shoes for new styles. The outcome, or what both agreed upon, was this: More than anything else, then patents, then whities. The sale of white goods will discount last year's sales.

The women next spring and summer will wear more colors than ever before. Just to illustrate what is coming, last summer in Philadelphia the fad of dressing in colors reached such a degree that some women who dressed in light green would wear nothing but green shoes to match their clothes. Next summer white footwear will be in vogue as much as, if not more than, it was about eighteen years ago.—Shoe Retailer.

The Cost of Living.

According to the annual report of the commissioner of labor, for incomes of under $4,200 a year the increase in the cost of living has been 15 and a fraction per cent in the last eight years. The general increase in the income of wage earning families has been a trifle over 10 per cent.

To set the averages the labor bureau secured the income and expenses in detail of over 2,500 households in thirty-three states of the Union. The average family consisted of five and one-half persons. Food claimed 42.54 per cent of the total expenditure, rent 12.95 per cent and clothing 14.04 per cent.

Tabloid Life.
The tabloid industry now is toward condensation, says the West Sussex Gazette, an English paper. Novels have been condensed into short stories, politics into Mr. Chamberlain, civilization into the amusing problem, agriculture into small holdings, miles into a motor car, letter writing into postcards, and even in all probability life itself will be condensed into a week end.

Peacock Hair Cut.
A barber in Indianapolis was fined $1 for cutting the hair of James Whitcomb Riley, Hoosier poet, on a Sunday, says the New York Herald. Light punishment for a capital offense.

And think of that old-time campaign, half believe that we would best get back to that old way again; When we would have the big parade And wear our hat and sell and scream, And go half wild when we would see Old Colonel Brownfield's twelve-horse team.

You make a great ado about The rottenness of our side, You say the meanest things you can And circulate them far and wide; You whine about the soap-house times, 'Bout the 'tween' trusts and fraud and lies, But when you come to sire 'em up It's hard to tell what's what or which; So I'm inclined to think that to a vast majority of our people, With Colonel Brownfield's twelve-horse team.

And these were days when men were true And politics had pedigree, When what we call ward heelers' now Were thugs you'd scarcely ever see; When Democrat was Democrat and through, And Whig was Whig without a flaw, From head to foot the true blue, With banners in the sun's bright beam, No soldiers ever rode in line With Colonel Brownfield's twelve-horse team.

Those old campaigns I can't forget
Though many years have come between,
And on that old-time parade would form
With banners in the sun's bright beam,

Making Friends

Its Pleasures as Well as Its Dangers

SOME girls might be dropped into the middle of Siberia," remarked the wise woman, "and I'm blessed if they wouldn't manage to have a circle of friends within a week."

"Allowing for the exaggeration, I've known girls like that," remarked the bachelor. "On the other hand, I've seen plenty of frigid damsels who might stay a year in a hotel full of people and never know a soul. Not that any one cared to know them, for the matter of that, but I don't see why women make life barren for themselves by erecting imaginary fences all the time. Now, with men it is generally conceded that they know how to enjoy life. Well, you don't see a man moping by himself just because he's afraid of breaking rule 1013 of the Amalgamated Feline Protective Union."

WITH A LOUD LOOKING WOMAN.

"That's all very well," here put in the wise woman. "I believe in broadening the horizon, in bowing and smiling and making acquaintances everywhere. Didn't I read a paper at my club called 'The Welcome Hand'? But, my goodness, since then I have seen an example that shows things can be carried too far. Perhaps you have met Marie Canton? Well, she and her husband live in the Boulevard, that big apartment hotel on the west side, you know. Nearly everybody lives there that has the price, and those that love variety can meet all kinds there. Marie beams on all alike—the godly and the goddly—and if any one wants to book arms with her, so to speak, why, Marie will still beam in that sweet childish way. It's all very well for Marie, because her husband's social position is such that it will stand the strain, and it doesn't hurt Marie herself, because all her friends simply think she's a sweet, undiscriminating child, but it's awfully hard on Marie's friends. You never know whom she is going to introduce you to. For instance, the other day she and Mrs. Hamilton drove up to the casino in the park, and who should greet them cheerfully but two undesized, very seedy looking men of swarthy foreign appearance. 'They live in the Boulevard,' whispered Marie in explanation as she bowed back and actually introduced them to the horrified Mrs. Hamilton. The inevitable happened, of course. The men quartered themselves at the same table, and some friends of Mrs. Hamilton at a table near by had the pleasure of beholding a very mixed foursome composed of two stunning women and two men that looked more like adventurers than anything else. When Mrs. Hamilton finally broke away she was so angry she wouldn't speak to Marie, and when the fastidious Mrs. Hamilton heard of it there was almost a divorce."

"Ha, ha, ha, ha!"

"Well, I'm glad you can find it so funny, but here is a story that may not amuse you so much, because your sister was the victim. She was the guest at a lunch given to her at the West Side Yacht club. Suddenly both she and her husband saw Marie Canton in the distance. 'Oh, let's ask Marie over. She is such fun,' your sister said. 'Better find out who she is with,' put in her husband, laughing. When Marie came over, sure enough, she brought with her a loud looking woman of the pronounced strawberry blond type. The young man who gave the lunch nearly fainted. Your sister was privileged to walk in the street a few times with the charming blond and Marie. Finally she remonstrated. 'Oh, she's a perfectly nice woman,' explained Marie, 'lives at the Boulevard and drives a pair of horses in the park every day.'

"It turned out in a month or so, when the 'perfectly nice woman' was put out of the Boulevard, that she was the divorced wife of 'Spot' Cole, gambler and also interested on the side in a livery stable, which latter respectable part of his calling accounted for the swell turnout. Whenever the lady meets your sister she insists on bowing, and as she is pretty well known the ordeal is a trifle embarrassing. You see, there are limitations to making friends."

Mrs. Anderson, a prominent society woman of Jacksonville, Fla., daughter of Recorder of Deeds, West, who witnessed her signature to the following letter, praises Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—There are but few wives and mothers who have not at times endured agonies and such pain as only women know. I wish such women knew the value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It is a remarkable medicine, different in action from any I ever knew and thoroughly reliable.

"I have seen cases where women doctored for years without permanent benefit, who were cured in less than three months after taking your Vegetable Compound, while others who were chronic and incurable came out cured, happy, and in perfect health after a thorough treatment with this medicine. I have never used it myself without gaining great benefit. A few doses restores my strength and appetite, and tones up the entire system. Your medicine has been tried and found true, hence I fully endorse it."—Mrs. R. A. ANDERSON, 225 Washington St., Jacksonville, Fla.

Mrs. Reed, 2425 E. Cumberland St., Philadelphia, Pa., says:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I feel it my duty to write and tell you the good I have received from Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"I have been a great sufferer with female trouble, trying different doctors and medicines with no benefit. Two years ago I went under an operation, and it left me in a very weak condition. I had stomach trouble, headache, palpitation of the heart, and was very nervous; in fact, I ached all over. I find yours is the only medicine that reaches such troubles, and would cheerfully recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to all suffering women."

When women are troubled with irregular or painful menstruation, weakness, leucorrhoea, displacement or ulceration of the womb, that bearing-down feeling, inflammation of the ovaries, backache, flatulence, general debility, indigestion, and nervous prostration, they should remember there is one tried and true remedy. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once removes such troubles.

The experience and testimony of some of the most noted women of America go to prove, beyond a question, that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will correct all such trouble at once by removing the cause and restoring the organs to a healthy and normal condition. If in doubt, write Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass., as thousands do. Her advice is free and helpful.

No other medicine for women in the world has received such widespread and unqualified endorsement. No other medicine has such a record of cures of female troubles. Refuse to buy any substitute.

$5000 FORFEIT If we cannot forthwith produce the original letters and signatures of above testimonials, which will prove their absolute genuineness.

SCHOOL BOARD

HELD A REGULAR MEETING ON MONDAY NIGHT.

The Salaries of Several Janitors Are Increased—Bills Allowed—Business of the Evening.

The regular meeting of the Board of Education was held on Monday evening, all the members being present. Messrs. Beggs, Christian, Effinger, Fulton, Haight, Keller, Keckley and Munch answering to roll call.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved, after which the bills were looked over and after discussion were allowed, the total amount, including contract bills for fire escape and school house furniture being $1139.42.

Superintendent Sinkins reported that in nearly all the school rooms, a number of the seats and desks were too small for the pupils and recommended that several desks and seats in each of the rooms be exchanged for larger sizes. The board authorized the superintendent to attend to the matter.

On recommendation of Mr. Sinkins, the supply committee was authorized to purchase several articles needed, and $48 was allowed to pay for magazine subscriptions which had been ordered for use in the high school library while $100 was allowed to cover the cost of rebinding and repairing books now in the school library.

The superintendent announced that on next Friday and Saturday the Central Ohio Teachers' Association will hold its annual convention in Dayton, and asked that a number of the teachers who wished to attend be given permission to do so. The desired permission was granted.

Anna M. Lyon was elected teacher of the Hoover street overflow building, while Miss J. D. Perry, a teacher in the West Newark building was given a leave of absence until Jan. 1. She wishes to take a course in nursing.

The salary of Mrs. Lena Thorne, janitress in the West Newark building was raised from $20 per month to $45 and she was allowed $10 for extra work in the building. The salary of Mrs. Mary Stasol of the Mill street building was raised from $29 to $30 per month until Jan. 1. The building committee was instructed to inspect the fire escapes which were recently constructed on the high school building, after plans furnished by the state inspector of buildings and were also authorized to make the changes deemed necessary to insure the safety of the escapes.

As required by law, the clerk of the board was ordered to transfer the money received from the city board of examiners for examination fees to the county treasury to be placed to the credit of the county teachers' institute fund, as required by law.

The building of lavatories on the first and second floors of the North Fourth street building was referred to the building committee with power to act.

TWO KINDS OF CHILDREN

Children that grow too fast and those that seem hardly to grow at all, both need Scott's Emulsion.

It gives that rich vital nourishment which is the secret of all healthy growth. It rounds out the long limbs, and helps children to grow without using up all their strength in growing.

Mothers ought to know more about the wonderful help which Scott's Emulsion would give their children.

There is no secret about Scott's Emulsion. Nothing is covered up by obscure references to active principles "or" alkalis.

Scott's Emulsion is simply an emulsion of the best Norwegian cod liver oil combined with the hypophosphites and glycerin.

It has been 50 years since Mrs. Dalton left the scenes of her childhood, yet a great many places seemed very natural. The ladies were entertained with a fine dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Wise, after which they wandered their way east as far as the Christian church, better known as the "stone pile," and taking in the sights along the way, calling on old neighbors stopping at "Rock Dale" farm for a short time, after which going to the old school house on Brushy Fork. WEATHER IS IDEAL

And Big Vote is Being Polled in the City of Newark Today--No Trouble Reported--Count Will be Late Tonight.

The weather is ideal and a big vote is being polled in the city of Newark today.

Several of the precincts reported that during the early hours men were voting at the rate of one a minute and the short time spent by the average man in the voting booth indicates that comparatively little scratching is being done in the city.

At one of the precincts complaint was made during the morning that the judges were not giving to the voters four ballots, but were handing them only the blank ballot and the school board ballot, but when the attention of the election board was called to the matter an order was issued directing the officers to give each voter four ballots--general ballot, school board, school bond and gas franchise.

At a late hour this afternoon the board of elections reported that no trouble whatever has arisen at any of the 17 city precincts. The election is proceeding in a quiet but orderly way. The heavy vote in the morning indicated that a full vote would be cast in the city today.

As before stated, owing to the unusually large ballot, and the fact that there are three additional ballots for the judges and clerks to deal with tonight, the returns will not be received until a late hour. Reports from over the country ought to come not much later than usual.

News from Cincinnati and Cleveland and from the eastern states will start and be received at an early hour.

Upon order of the board of elections seventeen men were registered Monday afternoon, making a total registration in Newark of 6,158, not including the four women who registered.

Between 2:30 and 3:30 this afternoon the Advocate visited each of the 17 city voting precincts and found the total vote in the city at that hour to be 4615. The total registration is 6,158. The vote by precincts follows:

First Ward--A 331, B 370, C 270.

Second Ward--A 227, B 283, C 288.

D 242.

Third Ward--A 337, B 210, C 347.

D 347.

Fourth Ward--A 274, B 260, C 333.

D 319.

Total vote cast 4615.

Vote still out between 2:30 and 3:30 p. m., 1545.

Other Ohio Towns.

Cincinnati, O., Nov. 8.--A clear sky, bright sunshine, and balmy atmosphere, greeted the voters of Cincinnati this morning. When the polls opened crowds were in waiting, and the voting has been kept up steadily. In addition to the national ticket votes are being cast for two congressmen, a full county ticket, the state school board and several councilmen. The indications are that a straight ballot is being cast generally with the exception of for members of the school board.

Dayton, O., Nov. 8.--The weather is cloudy but despite this a heavy vote is being polled. There is considerable scratching in the city ticket, there being a warm fight between the candidates for police clerk. The county will go Republican, but the contest for congressman to succeed Col. R. M. Nevin, who is a candidate for reelection is a close one, with nothing so far to indicate the result.

Delaware, O., Nov. 8.--Delaware county is getting out the biggest vote in her history today. The county, which is usually Republican by 600 party leaders say will give Roosevelt and Fairbanks over 900 plurality this year.

Marion, O., Nov. 8.--Warm and cloudy. A very heavy vote is being polled. There is much scratching being done. The thirteenth district congressional fight between Crissinger, Democrat, and Meuser, Republican, both of Marion, is very hot and bitter.

Findlay, Nov. 8.--Cloudy and cool weather this morning did not prevent the polling of a large vote. Indications point to a large majority for the Republican national ticket. Cote, Peabody, Democratic candidate for circuit judge, will run far ahead of their tickets.

Canton, O., Nov. 8.--Half the vote was cast here before 9 o'clock. Little scratching is being done, except on the board of education ticket where the fight is hot.

Youngstown, O., Nov. 8.--One of the largest votes ever known in the city and county is being polled today.

Long before noon more than half of the vote had been polled. The vote in the city will run within a hundred or so of the registration which was over 2,900.

The fight is against W. D. Jones, Republican candidate for auditor. It looks as though Herman F. Duesing, Democrat, would win. The two candidates are circulating election day affidavits, the citizens ticket for board of education will probably elect a majority against the Republicans. Roosevelt will get about 1800.

CONGRESS

MUST INCREASE TAX TO CREATE A NEW LEAN.

Vast Sum Still Due Veterans--President Reviews Conditions in the Island.

Havana, Nov. 8.--In sharp contrast to the rows which characterized the summer session of the Cuban congress, the winter session opened most quietly here. The members of the minority party occupied their seats in full force. Nationalist leaders state that it is not their intention to pursue their former obstructive tactics. In his message to the Cuban assembly, President Palma, after a lengthy review of present condition of the republic, outlined leading matters requiring action by congress.

In mentioning the process that has been made in paying off the 50 per cent of what is due the veterans, the total amounting to $25,000,000, President Palma asked congress to decide in what manner the remaining half should be raised or to suggest other mode of settlement. The president called attention to the fact that the Platt amendment would not permit Cuba to incur debt unless the ordinary receipts of the treasury were sufficient to pay off the sinking fund and interest, adding that as the present sources above the ordinary expenses are practically absorbed by the first loan, Cuba can not create a new loan except through increasing taxes.

The president compliments the military establishment and the various government departments, especially referring to the public works, the state and educational departments. The number of schools has reached 2,600, with 120,000 pupils, an increase for the year of 10,000 pupils. The agricultural station, under the management of United States agricultural experts, is developing a high degree of usefulness.

EXPLOSION

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 8.--A boiler of the tug Warnick of Toledo, at the plant of the Great Lakes Engineering company, blew up this morning and three men were terribly scalded. Clarence Corri of Toledo, is dead and George Morris and Louis Verne also of Toledo, were fatally burned by escaping steam.

Collision at Cincinnati.

Cincinnati, O., Nov. 8.--In acollision between a Rapid Railway suburban car and a Cincinnati Traction car at Sixth street hill, and Gilbert avenue, today, one man was killed and several injured, some seriously. The man who was killed has not yet been identified. Peter Campbell, colored, was badly hurt and was taken to a hospital. Among the others injured were William Steins, internally, and Mrs. Isadore Ivison, who was taken from the wreck unconscious. The traction car was backing down the hill, which is quite steep, when it hit the Rapid Railway car.

BROTHER'S SAD TASK.

How a Son's Death Is to Be Kept From His Blind Mother.

If love and filial devotion can serve Mrs. Katherine Kelly of Philadelphia, who is blind, will end her days in peaceful ignorance of the fact that her oldest son, Lawrence, is dead and buried, says the New York Press. To prevent knowledge of his demise from reaching the mother, who is eighty-two years old, another son has undertaken the task of impersonating his brother so long as Mrs. Kelly shall live.

Kelly was buried a few days ago from the home of his sister, Mrs. Michael Hubbert, also of Philadelphia. When Lawrence did not return home as usual the other evening his mother became restless and frequently asked what was detaining him. Michael Kelly, one of the two surviving sons, stepped into the breach. His voice is very much like that of his brother.

"Here I am, mother," said Michael, making as though he had just entered the house. "I was delayed."

The answer satisfied Mrs. Kelly, who felt for Michael's hand and patted it softly and fell asleep.

Neighbors, relatives and friends were cautioned to do or say nothing to uncover Mrs. Kelly. As the time for Lawrence's funeral approached Michael was in straits to control his emotion sufficiently to carry out the deception.

"We're going out awhile, mother," said James Kelly, another son. "Are you going too, Lawrence?" asked the mother. "Yes, mother," replied Michael. "I'm going too. We have a little business to attend to."

"You'll be back in time for supper," asked the old woman. "Yes, I'll be here at supper time," cheerily responded Michael, bending to kiss her.

WOULD SHE?

I'm the apple, swaying, bobbing. That Priscilla tries to bite-- Hanging line On the line.

With her rosy cheeks bobbing. Now the left, and now the right.

I'm a mighty lucky fellow Looking straight into her face. Blue her eyes As the skies.

And Priscilla's hair is yellow. And she has a wondrous grace.

As I kiss her lips so lightly Much I wonder what she'd do If that man Tried my plan.

Do you think that she would brightly Gayly try to bite him too? --McLanburgh Wilson in St. Louis Republic.

A Stunner.

By George, Mrs. De Swell is a stunning woman, isn't she?

"I should think so. She hit me with her automobile the other day, and it was two hours before I woke up."

The Only Solution.

George is four years old and has just arrived at the dignity of his first knickerbockers, with suspenders just like papa wears. They were the pride of his heart, and at night he would take them off his trousers and clasp them tight in his arms when he went to bed. His mother found them there the other night, and as they seemed to be making the little chap uncomfortable she took them away and hid them on a chair by his bed.

The next morning he had a long interview with his mother.

"Didn't you tell me, mamma," he said, "that angels watched over everything I did?"

"Yes, George."

"Are they watching me when I sleep?"

"Yes, my son. They watch over you always, whatever you are doing."

"Do they come right into my room at night?"

"Yes, dear. The good angels are everywhere, always."

"Then," said George meditatively, "I bet they've been monkeyin' with my suspenders!"--Portland Oregonian.

An Unfortunate Comparison.

"How did I lose her? My dear boy, as easily as tumbling off a log, by sending her a box of rare flowers. You are astonished that this could lead to an estrangement? Wait till you hear what happened. I was in Florida, and she was in Chicago, and I thought I'd clinch the thing by sending a box of orchids for her birthday celebration. This is what I wrote on the card accompanying the flowers:

"Sweetest to the sweet. To one as fresh and sweet and blooming as these flowers, which are only the type of her own beauty." Poetical, wasn't it? Unfortunately, though, the box miscarried and didn't reach her in three weeks. By that time the orchids were as dry and shriveled up as last year's leaves.

"And I had written, 'To one as fresh and sweet and blooming as these flowers.' I don't know what she said about me when she opened the box, but I do know that that was the last of me as far as she was concerned."--Chicago Record-Herald.

Where the Bacon Was.

There is a little dining room of the quick lunch order downtown where a bacon and beans meal is to be had at the moderate price of 5 cents. The other day a man strolled into the place and, after gazing pensively on the small quantity of bacon compared with the heaps on his plate, shouted to the waiter:

"Hey! I've got no bacon!"

As the waiter approached the table the diner corrected himself.

"Oh, yes. I beg pardon. Here it is."

"Did you find it?" asked the waiter.

"Yes. It got under one of the beams," was the answer.--New York Press.

Hours the Same.

Miss Budd--When a man's engaged to his girl his idea of "good hours" is to stay from 8 o'clock until any time after midnight.

Mrs. Oldum--Yes, and even after marriage the hours are the same.

Miss Budd--Indeed!

Her Last Call

By KEITH GORDON

Copyright, 1934, by Mary McKeon

"It's the last call for dinner in the dining car, my dear girl," said Jerrold, adjusting his speech to their surroundings, with a somewhat grim humor. "Will you or will you not undertake to love, honor and obey my unworthy self until one of the D's, preferably death, divides us? Because," he added thoughtfully, "it's the third time I've asked you, and I make it a point never to ask any woman more than three times."

"Any woman," she gasped, the color flaming into her cheeks and her eyes sparkling, "any woman! So I am!"

She stopped so abruptly that Jerrold was comically reminded of a fractious saddle horse he had once owned which would terminate a mad run with the same abruptness, planting his forefeet as rigidly as pokers. At last he had touched a responsive chord.

"You were about to remark?" he prompted invitingly. Ethel Pixley, her

"YOU ARE THE FOURTH," HE ANNOUNCED, face the picture of annoyance, experienced a sharp shock at her own heat.

Since she had refused him twice and had every intention of doing so again, even she realized the inconsistency of her quick resentment. She did not love him, of course not, and yet—well, one doesn't like to think of a rejected suitor as having offered himself to other girls.

"Might I ask just where I occur in the series?" she inquired at last in a tone whose exaggerated indifference was as soothing to Jerrold as the heat of a moment before had been.

He settled himself more comfortably in his chair, wheeled it about so that it commanded that view of her profile that he had come to regard as one of the solid joys of a fleeting existence and answered her with cheerful readiness.

"You are the fourth," he announced shamelessly, and at the words her eyes blazed into his again involuntarily, and he became lost in a great contentment. Usually she refused him so differently. It was: "You see, I don't love you in that way, though I want you for a friend. Somewhere there is a nice girl waiting for you, and we'll find her together." Jerrold gloated inwardly at the way in which the tables had turned and marveled at his own stupidity.

He felt a lively sense of fellowship with the worm that turned glowing in his veins. After months of abjectness he tingled with the consciousness that Richard was himself again and no longer a man made weakly indulgent by his love. In the fluttering of her nostrils he could read the anger and resentment that were surging through her, and he found the sight exhilarating. She was in and need of subjugating, this Katherine of his, and he applied himself to the task with a keener zest than he had ever before experienced. There was just a hint of mockery in his tone when next he addressed her.

"Of course," he continued, as if the ten minutes of tense silence that had elapsed since his last remark was the most natural thing in the world. "It rests entirely with you whether to be continued or 'concluded' shall be written after this the fourth chapter."

The deliberation of his speech was marked, and the darkening landscape suddenly ceased to absorb all of Miss Pixley's attention. She turned toward him like a cornered creature, prepared to conceal her chagrin to the uttermost. But at the expression of his face a cold fear touched her heart. Beneath his nonchalance she had expected to discover some sign of feeling—some indication of the eagerness and pleading that had looked so plainly from his eyes on other occasions when he had spoken of his love.

What she saw was the face of a superior who looks with a certain amount of interest and indulgence upon the pranks of a willful child.

She instantly felt as if she were a small, shivering thing in the midst of a big, cold world, though she clutched frantically at her cooling dignity.

"I don't see how you dare talk to me in such a manner," she began, with a look that was meant to crush him. But the rest of the sentence was lost. For, instead of returning to the worm state again—as by every token he should have done—he simply burst into an amused laugh.

"I didn't know that it was bad form to keep from trying," he explained.

With assumed contrition. "Surely, now, if you would be cruel and foolish enough to disregard the last call you wouldn't expect me never to look at another girl? To me at present you seem the one woman in the world. If you elect to remain so, I shall indeed be honored. If not?"

An expressive shrug, a glance at once tender and mocking, finished the sentence, and Ethel felt as if something that she had never appreciated was slipping away from her just as she was learning to value it.

The rhythmic rumbling of the wheels, the whirling lights outside where the dusk had deepened into velvety blackness, the cheerful brightness of the car, all seemed unreal.

She had boarded the train at Jersey City like a queen with a faithful, humble servant in tow, a servant whom in her heart of hearts she valued, but of whose devotion she was so sure that her estimate of him was disparaging for that very reason. And now—two hours later—everything had changed!

Even now, out of the tail of his eye, she could see that he was regarding the handsome, well set head of a girl who occupied a chair a few rows ahead of them with the interest of a man who realizes that you never know when or how you may meet—Her!

For the time being he actually seemed to have forgotten her royal self completely. It was all very well to pretend to give her the choice—allowing her to abdicate, as it were. In reality, she was convinced that she was dethroned!

"Handsome girl up there, isn't she?" he observed with enthusiasm, turning toward her at last with the furtively apologetic air of a man who has momentarily forgotten himself. "So well set up! Look at those shoulders and the poise of that head! Regular Juno!"

Ethel Pixley assented stiffly. "You have not always admired that type, though," she added defiantly. "You used to say you thought girls like that masculine."

"What a blind idiot I must have been," was the placid rejoinder, "and how one's standard of feminine beauty changes!"

"From chapter to chapter!" she finished sarcastically, and at the look of hot scorn that accompanied the words he had a glowing idea that the day was won.

At this juncture a picturesque figure appeared at the end of the car, above whose snowy garments a head that looked as if it were finely turned bronze rose superbly.

"Last call for dinner in the dining car!" called a musical voice as he lounged down the aisle with the gait of a man who has his sea legs on. "Dinner now ready in the dining car!"

There was a brief pause when he passed them and disappeared at the other end of the car, but his voice floated back to them, barely audible above the rumble of the wheels and freighted with a lingering ominous warning.

"Last call!"

A strange thrill ran through Ethel Pixley, and she turned toward the man beside her. It was only by an effort that she kept from holding out her hands to him. His face was grave almost to sternness, and under his masterful glance her own eyes fell, and she wondered in a sort of desperation whether her lips were quivering.

"As he says, Ethel, it's the last call, and I'm waiting for your answer."

Her only reply was a swift upflitting of the eyes that he remembered for years afterward as the sweetest thing he had ever witnessed in the way of April showers, and later on, when they had responded to the last call for dinner, the waiter ordered and chuckled, too, as he tucked into his pocket the crisp two dollar bill that he received as his share of the spoils.

A Curious Duel.
Maurus Jokai, the famous Hungarian novelist, established several newspapers, and though he gave little attention to them after they were once fairly started, he was always ready to assume the responsibility for any articles that appeared in them.

For this reason when Frank Pulsky, a noted member of the diet food club that he had been bitterly attacked in one of his journals and that he would expect him either to apologize or fight a duel he coolly replied that he would not apologize and that he would fight him at any hour and place he might name. The two therefore fought, and after the contest was over Jokai went up to his opponent, shook him warmly by the hand and said: "Now that I have given you every satisfaction I will thank you to tell me why we have fought. You complain about an article in one of my papers, but I didn't write the article, nor have I read it nor even seen it. Come, tell me what there was in it that displeased you so much."

He Figured It Out.
"I've got an eight-year-old boy at home that will make either a metaphysician or a detective. I'm not sure which," remarked a lawyer as he entered his office the other morning.

"The kid's just getting over an attack of measles and has had work amusing himself. Yesterday his mother and the nurse were in the room, and he spoke up all of a sudden, much to the embarrassment of his mother:

"Say, ma, I know how old nurse is."

"His mother thought the nurse might be confused, but she wasn't."

"How do you know so much, Willie?" she asked.

"Well, I asked you once how many years you've been nursing, and you said five. Then, when you forgot that, I asked you how old you was when you went to the training school, and you said eighteen. Then by and by I asked you how long you was in school, and you said four years. Now, eighteen and four and five are twenty-seven. See?"—New York Tribune.

SUCCESSFUL WORKERS.

Casual Fields From Which Women Glenn a Good Living.

Upon the same spot, under the same conditions and in the same business in which men have previously failed many a time women succeed. Six years ago John Stege died and left to his daughter a farm lying in the bay region near San Francisco. The farm consisted mostly of frog marshes, and even these marshes were mortgaged. He could not pay the mortgage, he could not wrest a living from the marshes, so John Stege lay down and died. He left his daughter Edith to take up his load and carry it or sink under it, as the case might be. She did not sink.

Successful plans often seem somehow to come to us out of the air. One day Edith Stege dined at a restaurant in San Francisco. She looked over the bill of fare and saw by the high price that a rare and dainty tidbit frogs' legs were.

"Frogs' legs," said Miss Edith to herself, "and my land is swarming with frogs' legs and frogs!"

She had received her hint from that restaurant menu on which was printed the price of frogs' legs. She went home and began to net frogs for the city market. Along with the farm full of frogs her father had left to her a faithful Chinaman who had worked for him several years. Ching Lee transferred his fidelity to John Stege's daughter. When she began to net frogs for market Ching Lee entered into her plan with all his Chinese patience and industry. He took upon his arm a big basket of frogs and carried them from door to door of restaurants and hotels, getting fine prices for them. Meantime Miss Edith was at home catching more frogs.

She learned as she went along. In time the marsh was turned into separate ponds for frogs of different varieties and of different stages of growth. There was one for tadpoles, another for half grown frogs and another for the full grown. The mortgage long since has been paid and the frog marsh has been turned into a slightly up-to-date farm home, one of the slow places of the region. Every tourist wishes to see Miss Stege's frog farm, with its lakes, bridges and canals.

A young lady in the east has gone into the business of rearing Persian cats for a living. She finds it easy to get from them an income of $1,500 a year; more than that some years. The business has not as yet been overdone, for Persian cats on a commercial scale were only introduced into this country some twelve years ago. They were brought first to the Pacific slope and made their way gradually east and into fashionable cat circles about the same time. In England the Persian cat has been in high favor with fashionable fanciers for many years.

Women have proved more successful in the rearing of high bred cats than men have for the reason that women like cats better than men do. The young woman who clears $1,500 a year from her Persians says that the first essential to success in rearing them is that one must be a natural lover of the feline. Otherwise by some occult psychological law the cats seem to sicken and die.

The longer haired and the shorter tailed and "clouffier" the pedigreed Persian pussy is the higher price will bring. With some of the tribe the hair sweeps the ground. The breed is rather delicate and needs as much care in the rearing as children do. It is absolutely necessary that Persians and their quarters be kept immaculately clean. Moreover, neither the mother Persians nor their kittens can bear crowding. For a beginner two female cats with their offspring, some twenty-five kittens a year, are as many as it is well to undertake. Pedigreed Persians a year old sell for from $50 to $60 apiece and kittens six months old for $25, though they are not certain to thrive if sold so young as that. Many Persians are reared by women in Chicago.

There is a lady near Philadelphia who makes an excellent income from raising squabs. The business is yet comparatively in its infancy, and it will not be overdone for years to come. The Philadelphia woman has brought her enterprise to so good a condition that she now sells a hundred squabs a week at excellent prices.

Some capital is required to begin squab raising, and a little time must elapse before any birds are ready for market. The stock pigeons to commence on can be had in some places for 75 cents a pair. There are houses and screen fences to be built also, and the would be squab raiser must learn the business. She must be prepared in her mind to meet disappointment and vexation by the way and go on to the successful end nevertheless.

A FOOL AND HIS MONEY

By EDNA MANVERS

Copyright, 1934, by L. E. Moss

The haze of the semitropics was everywhere, blending the gorgeous tints of hills and valleys in its elusive veil. There were tears in the Mexican's eyes as he sang to his tinkling guitar, and his eyes were later with grief. He looked up from beneath his sombrero, his black eyes showing the clear white beneath.

"What's the matter?" came in a foreign voice, and he glanced up to see the American miner looking down on him. There was something unpleasant in the American's eye that held people aloof and made them speak with restraint when he was near. Raphael stopped playing, covered his face with his hands and sobbed aloud.

"Buck up, friend!" the American cried, then added in Spanish, "What's wrong, anyhow?" Raphael grew calmer. He stood up and leaned on his guitar, looking toward the humble home where his little brothers and sisters were at play.

"Oh, senor," he cried in confiding dejection, "tis the beautiful Senorita Anita! Senor, they have shut her up, and I shall never see her any more. I die of love for her."

"No, you won't," muttered the American, turning away to hide a cynical gleam. The dam of Raphael's grief was loosened, and the contents of his soul poured into listening ears. And this was the tale he told: He loved the Senorita Anita, a bewitching damsel far above him; was dying of love for her. Many times they had met on the plaza, and she had glanced shyly from beneath her mantilla and smiled at him. Yes, he could swear she smiled. She was beautiful and good. He had had no glimpse of her since except from behind the bars of her window. He could neither eat nor sleep.

The American turned away, while his lips curled unpleasantly. Raphael amused him. He was an exceptional Spaniard. He had scraped together a kind of education for himself and was something of a genius in music. Under more favorable conditions he might have made a way for himself in the world.

The cynicism faded from the American's eye as he asked where the senorita lived and who her family were.

Anita lay asleep. The moonlight came through the roses at the window, and all was still. Suddenly through the darkness came a single sweet note. The girl sat up to listen. She pushed back her hair and listened again. Her eyes shone, her cheeks flushed, and her little heart beat fast. She stole to the window, holding her mantilla close about her chin. Beneath the orange tree stood a man. Her heart fluttered faster, and the hot southern passion shone in her eyes. It was the rich Senor Americano. Several times he had passed the house, after the custom of the Mexican boy. The maid clasped her hands softly in acknowledgment that she accepted the tribute. The notes grew more pleading still.

"Senorita."

"Senor, I am here," whispered the girl and then drew back softly.

"Fair one, listen. Then he poured into her ears a tale of love.

"One," said he, "loves thee—Anita. Loves thee into death, but he cannot marry thee in this country. Will you leave sunny Mexico and go to America with your lover's wife?"

The little senorita giggled. She had been in love ever since she could talk, her mother complained. This one and that one she had flirted with and had even been cut up as punishment for making eyes at Raphael, a common youth of the plaza. Late one day her mother had noticed the Senor Americano passing by the house, and she was well content that he should pay court to her pretty daughter and end all the trouble.

"Senor," came in soft Mexican Spanish, "has he money to buy the wedding clothes?"

"He has enough to buy the finest any bride could wish."

"And does he love me well, senor?"

"To distraction, oh, divine one!"

She drew back and shivered a little, but the dimples played in her cheeks. Anita must love and be loved and would make a good, true little wife for any man who would only love her enough.

"Senor," she leaned far out into the silver night, pulled a rose and threw it down to him. "Senor, when?"

He picked up the flower, kissed it and pressed it to his heart. He was so comely, artificially Mexican. It frightened and attracted her.

"Now," he answered. "Now, Anita. Will you come with me now?"

The realization came to her like a shock. Leave her father and mother? Go with this man? To America? Love and romance were her guiding stars, poor little soul. Yes, she would go.

"In two minutes, senor," she whispered.

A victoria sped away from the house. The girl kept up a soft giggle as the carriage bumped over the stones that covered the street, but as they reached the outskirts of the city she turned silent.

"Senorita," that was the first word her strange lover had spoken. He now leaned forward in the darkness. "Senorita, are you afraid?"

His gaze was cold and steady.

"Are you afraid, gentle senorita?" he repeated, as she did not answer.

"No, senor. But why are you so—so still? You do not love me?"

Her voice shook.

"Senorita, I have loved many beautiful ladies. I am—bah!"—he seemed to be talking to himself—"tired of it all."

"Tired of love?" A cold hand knocked at the door of her heart. The carriage was on a lonely, white country road now.

"Senorita, I cannot—I—er—well, you see, I cannot marry you—I—"

"You cannot marry me? Then why did you bring me here?"

"Wait, senorita. Do you love me?"

She was dazed by the sudden, practical question; then she shuddered and answered: "No, I hate you, I hate you, senor! Oh, take me back to my mother! Take me home!"

"Have you ever loved any man? Ever truly loved?" he asked without heeding her.

In her heart arose the vision of a pair of faithful, gentle eyes that had sought hers on the plaza and a form that bent over the guitar at twilight. She burst into tears. "Oh, yes," she moaned. "Raphael, dear Raphael!"

The carriage stopped. The lover climbed out; then, leaning on the window ledge, he whispered, "If you are wise, keep still."

And she obeyed. The horses stirred, the coachman dozed and the time grew long. Then the night quiet was broken by the wailing voice of the American, mingled with the soft tones of her native tongue. The carriage door opened, and there before her stood Raphael.

"Now," said the American, "if you want to go home I'll take you back. If you want to go with your lover, go."

For answer she threw herself into Raphael's arms, and caste and property were forgotten in the bliss of a first kiss of love gratified.

"Here's a purse for you and your girl, Raphael. Hope you'll like married life."

He told the driver to drive to the station with the pair and stood watching them disappear down the white road. Then he took out a cigar, bit off the end and laughed as he said aloud: "I always thought Miss Standish was a fool. Half my mine gone too. 'The fool and his money are soon parted.' Well, it's the only fun I'll ever get out of it."

Then he went down the road toward the city alone.

Old Scotch Apprentice Laws.

A newspaper of Dundee, Scotland, publishes the regulations established for apprentices in that town several hundred years ago. Here is one which deals with the custom of apprentices drinking at night. "It is statute that forasmuch as the gentry abuse among the prentices given in to the denizens and maisters declaring that they delorate at night by visiting and drinking, neglecting their due time to come to their work, and rise early in the morning for entering thereof, it is intolerable to be suffered in any civil burgh. For remedy thereof it is consensid that like servants and prentices of the craftes keep their ordinary dyet of intermediate and go to their beys at ten hours at night, and who bees drinking or walgering in other men's houses or in the streets of the get after ten hours night shall pay to the crafts box, servants, three shillings and fourpence, and prentices, six shillings and fourpence, and if he have no monies, to be punished at the will of the deacon and maisters."

Ruin For Rats.

A farmer tells the Sodaia Capital that he had his farm at rats in the following manner: "On a very large number of places of old shingles I put about half a teaspoonful of molasses and on that with my pocketknife I stumped a small amount of concentrated lye and then placed the old shingles around under the stable doors and under the cribs. The next morning I found forty dead rats, and the rest had left for parts unknown. I have cleared many farms of the pests in the same way and have never known it to fail."

Some modification of this scheme will drive mice out of your house or apartment.

ROBBERS

Tortured Sandusky Farmer Till He Gave Up Forty Dollars.

Sandusky, O., Nov. 5.—Three masked robbers entered the home of Joseph Robbins, a farmer living near North Amhurst, last evening, and demanded that he give them what money he had in the house. Robbins protested. The robbers beat him insensible and turned his feet until he told where $40 was concealed.

Robbins lives alone on a farm and has long been supposed to keep a considerable quantity of money in the house. The robbers used insulation on copper telephone wire to do the burning, setting fire to a paraffine-soaked cloth.

IN PATASKALA

Republicans Are Mad Because Council and School Board Were Not Certified.

Pataskala, O., Nov. 8.—There is much confusion and no little disappointment here today over the failure of Mr. S. Conine, the central committeeman, to certify to the Board of Elections the Republican nominations for council and board of education. As a result of this omission the tickets are blank, the names of J. W. Fravel, George E. Wells and A. E. Frankenburg being left off of the ticket for council, and the names of C. C. Baird, H. E. Eroke, H. S. Chrysty, Joseph Atkinson and A. M. Beaver being left off of the school board ballot. Messrs. Atkinson and Beaver had been nominated for two year terms and the other three for four year terms.

This failure to certify the names will result in the election of a Democratic council, but the presence of an independent school board ticket in the field means the election of at least three Republicans as members of that body. Messrs. Chrysty and Atkinson are on the independent ticket. Republicans are voting that ticket for lack of a ticket of their own.

BOGUS MONEY

THREE MEN ARE ARRESTED IN CLEVELAND.

Hungarians Alleged Victims—Complete Counterfeiting Outfit is Recovered by Police.

Cleveland, O., Nov. 8.—Three alleged counterfeiters, who, it is charged, have made and circulated large sums of bad Hungarian money, have been arrested in this city by secret service officials. The latter raided the headquarters of the counterfeiters and arrested John Kerkowicz, Michael Owerze and John Hirvat. They were charged with having in their possession counterfeit money of a foreign government. A complete counterfeiting outfit, together with a quantity of bogus money, was found. It is claimed by the secret service officials that many Hungarians returning from this country to their native land exchanged their United States currency, through the prisoners, for what they supposed to be Hungarian money, only to find that it was counterfeit on reaching Hungary. The Hungarian government finally called the attention of the American government to the matter.
